A diagram showing a 4x16 grid of squares. The grid is composed of four rows and sixteen columns. Above the grid, there is a horizontal line that spans the width of the grid, with a small vertical tick mark at the center. Below the grid, there is another horizontal line that also spans the width of the grid, with a small vertical tick mark at the center. The grid is divided into four groups of four squares each, with a small gap between the groups.
